Luque Reviews Practice Models

March 22, 2013

A collaborative study including Dr. Juan Luque at Georgia Southern University Jiann-Ping Hsu College of Public Health reviews practice models. The study titled “Delivery of mobile clinic services to migrant and seasonal farmworkers: a review of practice models for community-academic partnerships” and published in the Journal of Community Health, addresses the challenges of providing health services for this priority population to study the numerous health access barriers that face migrant and seasonal farmworkers (MSFW); evaluates the services provided at mobile clinics; summarizes practice models for community-academic partnerships; and synthesizes the literature on effective partnership approaches to deliver these services.

The review found that service partnerships were characterized by collaboration between academic institutions and community organizations, with a lead agency driving sustainability efforts.
